... And Also Running

In the sportsmanlike spirit that characterizes Greenbelt elections, the losers, Jack Queen and Virginia Moryadas, joined the victors Tuesday night at a post-election party at the Fire House which was open to all. Only one write-in vote was cast — for Bruce Bowman. There were 55 absentee ballots.

Dedication of Springhill Lake Recreation Center Sunday

by Wini Milan

"The best thing about the new building is the great potential we now have for expansion of the city's recreation program," declares recreation director Hank Irving when discussing the advantages of the recently completed Springhill Lake Recreation Center. Intended for use by all Greenbelt residents, the new center is a natural-look, earth-tone, brick and wood air conditioned building, which houses a full size gymnasium including bleachers and an exercise room, plus shower and rest room facilities. In addition, there are a large game room, a TV lounge, a separate multi-purpose room, and a "fish bowl" style control office. Located on Springhill Lake's golf course, the new building will now be used in conjunction with the golf club house, where recreation classes and meetings will be held.

Greenbelters are all cordially invited to come take a look at the new SHL center during its dedication this Sunday, September 21, at 5 p.m. Light refreshments will be served following dedication by city council members. There will also be games, entertainment, and guest celebrities, including WASH radio personality Bob Duckman, who will be master of ceremonies. KAVA Teen Club will sponsor a dance (admission free) in the new gym from 7-10 p.m. featuring music by the Free Spirit band.

History

The $390,000 SHL Recreation Center was first conceived in 1968 when a referendum successfully submitted to the voters listed the Center as one of a half-dozen projects that would be financed through the sale of $950,000 worth of bonds. At that time the cost of the project was estimated at $60,000, but included no plans for a gymnasium.

The site for the building was to be donated by the Springhill Lake apartment owners as part of a package which involved the sale of the 12.9 acre SHL golf course to the city. Since this land was partly within a flood plain, delays were encountered in obtaining necessary Federal (HUD) and State approval for open-space grants to finance the purchase of the golf course. Such grants in the amount of $89,000 were finally approved in the fall of 1972, but in the meantime construction costs had begun to escalate rapidly.

By the time the city was ready to let bids out, the estimates for the building were in the neighborhood of $300,000. The city's financial problem, however, was eased somewhat by the availability of Federal revenue-sharing funds, of which about $95,000 was allocated to the Recreation Center, leaving $295,000 of the $390,000 total to come from the bond issue.

Activities

Open 365 days a year, as is the Youth Center, SHL center will be utilized at once for a great variety of recreational programs. Fall activities will include basketball, floor hockey, table games, volleyball tournaments, movies, TV, and open gym. Free programs will be available in arts and crafts, model building, and group games/physical fitness (Chucks and Lassies) for elementary school children.

For preschoolers through grade 3 there will be Fun Time, a combination of stories, games, and crafts. Organized gym activities will be offered for girls and women, for men, and an open co-recreation gym for all ages. On family night, the first Friday of each month from 7-11 p.m., families are encouraged to use game room facilities.

All the above mentioned programs are also conducted at other recreational centers in Greenbelt, and information concerning them may be obtained by calling 474-6878 weekdays (recreation department business office) or 345-2770 for Springhill Lake center activities. The recreation department plans to work in cooperation with Mrs. Sutton, social director at the Springhill Lake community house, in developing new programs and activities.

An exceptionally wide choice of activities is offered through the recreation department. In fact, recently Greenbelt has become a National Gold Medal award finalist for parks and recreation management excellence. Springhill Lake Recreation Center is expected to make a superior recreation program even better.

Health Fair - Sept. 26-27 At Beltway Plaza Mall

The primary purpose of the Fair is educational; however, many free health tests will be provided, such as cholesterol, blood pressure, hearing, vision, glaucoma, dental plaque, diabetes, oral cancer, breast cancer and tuberculosis skin testing.

Chubby "the Hip" Cherub will describe venereal disease. Strollers may pick up informative pamphlets and discuss health issues and problems with professionals. The infant and child stimulation booth should be a hit with youngsters and parents alike.

Weidenfeld Gets High Vote But Castaldi Close Second

by Al Skolnik

In one of the closest finishes in years, which saw only 22 votes separating the first and third-place winners, Mayor Pro-Tem Gil Weidenfeld eked out the high vote in last Tuesday's Greenbelt city council election. His 999 votes were just 12 more than Richard Castaldi's, who in turn finished 10 votes ahead of Mayor Richard Pilski. All three were incumbents, with Weidenfeld winning his third term to office and Castaldi his second. For Mayor Pilski, the veteran of the council, it was his sixth straight election to office.

The other two spots on the five-member council also went to incumbents — Charles F. Schwan and Thomas X. White, who finished in that order. Sixth place went to Jack Queen who in his first outing finished strong with 820 votes — some 74 votes behind the fifth-place winner. (See accompanying box for votes.)

All of the top vote gatherers pulled over 40 percent of the vote, thus eliminating the need for a run-off election. In fact, all the winners polled more than 50 percent of the votes.

National Quilt Exhibit At Greenbelt Library

Greenbelters will have an opportunity to see unusual and beautiful quilts at the National Quilting Association's Sixth Annual Quilt Exhibit at the Greenbelt Library on September 18, 19 and 20 during library hours. According to the president of the Association, Ms. Lynn Harris, 9 Empire Place, there will be at least 300 entries from all over the United States. These will include both traditional quilt patterns and original designs. In addition the Stearns & Foster Company, makers of quilt batting, who also provide patterns for traditional designs will send six very old quilts from their collection. The firm gives one of the awards in the show.

Judges are Celene Mahler of New York who decorated the White House last Christmas, Doris Bowman of the Smithsonian Textile Dept., and Fay Geldex, a teacher. Quilts are judged for quality of workmanship, design, color choice, and in the case of the non-traditional quilts, for quality of the design and its originality.

The exhibit has been held in Greenbelt since 1970, both because the Association "finds the library staff so pleasant to work with", according to Ms. Harris, and because it is centrally located with adequate parking. Demonstrations of quilting and related crafts will take place during the show. Admission is free.

City Questionnaires

Copies of the City Election Questionnaire, Talent Survey and the flyer for information on Senior Citizen Housing are available at the City Offices for those Greenbelters who did not get them at the polls Tuesday. The Talent Survey is also printed elsewhere in this paper. Completed questionnaires may be returned to the City Offices, 25 Crescent Road.

The new council, which will serve for two years, will hold an organizational meeting on Monday, September 22, at which time the new mayor will be elected. Although the charter is silent on this point, past councils have generally chosen the top vote gatherer.

The 1,451 votes cast represented 48 percent of the 3,053 registered voters. This is one of the lowest turnouts in recent history. In 1973, 54 percent of the electorate turned out and in 1971 53 percent.

A rundown in the respective precincts follows:

	Registered Voters	Votes Cast	%
Center	1,243	634	51
North End	1,139	624	55
Springhill	671	193	29

An analysis of the voting by precinct reveals some interesting patterns. For example, Weidenfeld was not the high vote-getter in any of the three precincts but he drew consistently well in all three. Pilski was high man at North End and Springhill Lake and Castaldi was high man at Center. Outside of the top three men, Schwan was the only one to finish above fourth in any precinct — that was in the Center.

School Night for Scouting

School Night for Scouting — the night when any boy from 8 to 20 can join the scouting program will be held next Thursday, September 25, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Representatives of Pack and Troop 746 will meet interested boys and parents at Greenbelt Center School; Troop 1746 will be at St. Hugh's; and Pack and Troop 202 will register boys and adults at North End School on that night.

Scouting now has a lot of new activities, plus opportunities for a lot of fun. For example, in October's schedule is the Council-wide Camporall at Bowie on October 3-4-5, the Good Will Clothing Drive on October 18, the Scout Day at Largo Wildlife Preserve on October 25 and many more fast-moving happenings. Cubs and Scouts alike will participate.

Come in and talk with the enthusiastic Scouts of Greenbelt.

SPECIAL THANKS

To the Editor:

Occasionally, in preparing a list of those who help during a particular affair, someone is inadvertently left off the "thank you" list. It sometimes can't be helped for in the rush of things to do, mistakes like this will occur. Recently in my letter to the editor in which I thanked all those who helped make the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival a successful one, I left off a most important person. For without her, those who sought pertinent information regarding specific times of events, locations of booths, and types of activities, would have wandered around the area or missed an important event. I am referring to Helen Oring, who organized and scheduled the Woman's Club of Greenbelt to maintain the Information Booth at the Festival. Not satisfied with merely organizing and scheduling, she also worked a shift at the booth.

To you, Mrs. Oring, and those volunteers from the Woman's Club of Greenbelt, my sincere appreciation for an important job well done and especially to you, Mrs. Oring, an apology for omitting your name. Far too many of us work for the betterment of a community without thought of any thanks, without the need for public recognition. The community needs such individuals for without them, where would one buy "Community Spirit"? Helen Oring is such a person.

Solicits Views On Juvenile Justice

To the Editor:

Recently, I was appointed by the House of Delegates to serve on the newly created Commission on Juvenile Justice. It so happens that I am the only Commission Member from Prince George's County. The charge of the Commission is to examine all facets of the juvenile justice system in the State and make recommendations for improvement to the 1976 and 1977 sessions of the General Assembly.

As one long involved with the problems of young people in our County, I know that something must be done to stem the spiraling rates of delinquency and crime. At the same time, we must guard against making criminals out of our kids. There is a solution, and together, we must find it.

My purpose in writing is to solicit views from your readers on what should be done. I welcome suggestions and comments from the public and encourage your readers who have ideas to write to me at Post Office Box Z, Bowie, Maryland 20715.

It has been said "that as the twig is bent, so inclines the tree." For whatever reason, we are producing more criminals than ever before in the history of our County. There must be a solution - I am calling on our citizens to help us find it.

David Gray Ross, Member
Commission on Juvenile Justice

Wants Monitoring

To the Editor:

I would suggest that both brick home owners and frame home owners form their own committees to monitor their own interests, and by taking turns go to board meetings twice a month.

The committee for the frames should check the monthly invoices of No. 4 oil in the 4 large boilers servicing 704 units, and cost, to obviate a yearly check.

Have the committee check all the contracts of Capital Improvements under the moratorium, for every dollar charged is a repayment on that loan.

Have the chairman of the committee get a xerox copy of the U.S. Income Tax Report and the auditor's yearly (book and record) report. The Note Journal should give them additional information to draw a conclusion as to where they have been applied.

Hoping to reach the right people to implement this monitoring of their assets, I remain a concerned member.

Martha Hutzler

Open Letter on Religion

Do you support Greenbelt religiously?

Greenbelt was planned for community. A community doesn't just happen. Community is people who live, work and play together, who share the same problems and the same opportunities. Community, if it is to happen, takes work, involvement, and commitment.

The worst enemies of our community are not crime, drugs, delinquency, busing, overcrowding, or pollution. The worst enemies are indifference and uninvolvedness.

The religious organizations of Greenbelt believe in community. We are committed to community seven days a week. We build a better community by strengthening the moral fabric, the personal faith, the family ties through public worship of God and community services.

We recognize our differences, but we refuse to be indifferent. Be involved with us. Support Greenbelt religiously.

Angry Citizen

To the Editor:

I'm getting a little bit tired of the local Greenbelt Theatre depicting women so vividly in their posters as public sex objects, like animals. The latest display picturing women's exposed breasts, with the invitation printed in large letters - "feast on it" - is an insult to this normal wholesome family community. All of us have mothers, sisters, wives, and daughters whom we hold in high respect and whom we love deeply. If the manager of the theatre, who could hardly be a resident here, is not aware of this feeling in our community, I suggest that he take the time to discover the feeling about womanhood here, and that we represent the constant public display of them as ordinary sex objects.

We all know the facts of life and the part that normal sex plays in normal family life. We are also aware that there are many more beautiful, lovely and attractive qualities that we admire and respect in the women we love, and we would like to see our womanhood publicly displayed accordingly. Your public displays of womanhood are out of order, Mr. Theatre Manager, to this individual, and I suspect to just about every father, husband, and brother in Greenbelt. I was just about to sign this letter when my wife chimed in - "and you can add: to every mother, wife and daughter too."

Just an angry citizen's comments.

LET KASH HELP YOU

Blue Cross and Blue Shield answer three questions about extra coverage.

Q: I don't belong to a group. Is there a way for me to get diagnostic coverage?

A: You can. Through the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Non-Group Comprehensive Program. In addition to diagnostic benefits, the Comprehensive package includes 70 day Blue Cross in-hospital protection, the new Blue Shield Plan "1", sudden and serious coverage, and a $25,000 Major Medical program. Once a year, the program is opened to all people regardless of the condition of their health. During the rest of the year, application can be made through our regular underwriting system.

Q: According to my contract, coverage for my dependents stops at age 19. However, my neighbor says his program at work covers dependents until age 23. Who's right?

A: Both of you, probably. Under most of our contracts, coverage for dependent children stops at the end of the calendar year in which they reach age 19. But, there are some groups which have purchased an endorsement to extend coverage past that age. The best rule of thumb is to check your contract or with your employer. When coverage does cease, dependents should check with their employer about group coverage... or enroll in one of our non-group programs. If they're in college, they can convert to our special low-cost student program.

Q: Medicare is nice, but can you do anything about the things it doesn't pay for?

A: We're already doing something about it, with the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medicare Supplemental Program. At a very low cost, it covers most of Medicare's deductible and co-insurance requirements. If you're over 65, or under 65 and disabled, you're eligible for Medicare Supplemental. No physical exams or health statements are required. You just have to be eligible for Medicare.

Membership in the program is open to all Medicare beneficiaries during a special enrollment period normally held the first of each year. Membership also is open whenever a beneficiary becomes eligible for Medicare.

Your health is what we're all about.

Police Blotter

A 19 year old female resident was charged by Officer Duprat with driving while intoxicated after she struck a United States Park Police car parked in the municipal parking lot.

Following apprehension by Officer Duprat for a traffic violation, a male from Crofton was found to be in possession of a stolen citizen band radio, and in possession of manufactured items from which the serial numbers had been removed. The defendant was charged with both property offenses, which are felonies under Maryland State laws.

A resident juvenile was turned over to juvenile authorities after medical treatment for an overdose. The youth had been reported as a runaway.

One cruiser was extensively damaged while responding to the scene of a reported hold-up. The operator of the other vehicle involved failed to grant right of way to vehicle using emergency lights and siren. No charges have been placed.

Two breaking and enterings were reported, one on Ridge Road and the second on Hillside. Two suspects were observed in the area and are being investigated. Seven additional larcenies were reported and investigated.

The department investigated thirty-three cases of disorderly conduct, including nineteen attributed to juveniles.

Following an investigation initiated by Officer Stair, three adult males were charged with possession of controlled dangerous substances. A search warrant was executed on the subjects' apartment in Lakeside North where a quantity of illegal substances was found.

Seven of fourteen vandalisms investigated were closed with the arrest of a male resident of Breezewood Court who was apprehended by Officer Ceccarelli and incarcerated in lieu of $3,000 bond shortly after the defendant spray painted several parked autos near his residence.

Shortly after receiving a look out for a vehicle wanted for failure to pay a bill at a local service station, Cpl. Coombes apprehended the operator who paid the bill rather than face criminal prosecution.

Eleven officers are currently enrolled in area colleges or universities for the fall semester.

Greenbelt Grab-bag

by Punchin' Judy

When the letter came from the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority I almost didn't open it. Another request for charity? I wondered. But it turned out to be a big surprise - an invitation to get a preview ride on the new subway. What an opportunity! From time to time this reporter has had the chance to review something on the TV tube, but here was the possibility of doing a story on a real big tube!

Armed with a map provided by Metro, I headed for the Rhode Island Avenue Station. Confusion set in early, when I discovered that the map was fashioned so that the top was west and the bottom east. This necessitated making a right turn across two lanes of traffic to enter the parking lot, resulting in nasty looks from two truck drivers and a motor cyclist, and a devout hope on my part that the maker of the map had had no part in the planning of the subway routes.

Having negotiated this maneuver, I found myself in an area marked "Kiss and Ride", apparently a reference to the hope that a commuting spouse could be dropped off, embraced, and left to continue the work-bound trek on the subway. I parked my car and joined a milling crowd of a hundred or so people. One could tell the Metro workers from the visitors by their hard hats. The fleeting thought came that if the ride was dangerous enough for them to wear protection, how come we didn't get any? Also to mind came the remarks of kind friends, such as, "They're letting you on the subway with your history of getting stuck in tunnels?" and "Wow, I hope it doesn't collapse while you're in it." But these doubts were brushed aside, as I stepped into the station.

For a long time nothing happened, as can be expected with public transportation. Finally we were invited up the escalators. The first one had a sign saying "Not in operation, use other escalator." The other one wasn't working either, so we walked up. There the train awaited us by the platform. It was beautiful and the doors were open, so we went in and sat down. More time passed and we were asked to leave the train for the time being. We stepped out on the platform again and some more time passed. Finally I noticed that almost everybody was back in the train so I ran in and found a seat.

The train began to move and we were given all sorts of information on the PA system. Politicians were walking up and down the aisles, and I had my hand shaken by people whose pictures I remembered from election posters in Washington. After a short ride we landed in Judiciary Square, where we were allowed to putter around and explore. We were told that the walls are graffiti-proof, which may be true provided that all passengers are frisked for spray paint. We were transported to the other finished stations and then whisked back to the starting point. On the way back we hit seventy miles per hour and were informed that we had the honor of being the first guests to ride a four car train, the previous record being two cars.

Our dream of a speedy start of regular service was dashed by the news that the system has been able to get delivery of only fourteen cars, far too few to begin operation. But the ride was a pleasure, and at the end the voice on the PA said, "Ladies and gentlemen, we hope you enjoyed your trip. Please remember that we have a deficit, and leave your contribution at the foot of the escalator." Everybody laughed, including your reporter. Only maybe he wasn't joking.

Some Precautions On Encephalitis

Anxious Prince Georges County residents are assured by county health officials that encephalitis, which recently has hospitalized three persons, is not contagious. Dr. David Anders, Chairman of the P. G. General Hospital's Infectious Disease Committee, said, "The disease can only be transmitted by an infected mosquito and the chances of serious infection are only 2 in 300." He advises that anyone who has been bitten recently by a mosquito and who is experiencing chills, fever, muscle pain, severe headache, nausea and vomiting to contact his family physician.

Health officials urge that residents take the following precautions:

1. Empty and clean all buckets, wading pools or other containers that collect water because mosquitoes prefer to breed in this type of environment rather than in streams.

2. Avoid being outdoors at dawn or dusk, which is when mosquitoes are most likely to be actively seeking food.

3. Anyone who does go outdoors at those times should wear long pants and long sleeves, covering as much of the body as possible.

4. Use bug repellents.

5. Avoid wooded, marshy or grassy areas where mosquitoes might thrive.

6. Measures should be taken to assure that mosquitoes cannot enter the house. Doors and windows should be adequately screened. Tape up holes in screens. For added protection, spray house screens at night with insecticides.

Mosquito control units of the Maryland Department of Agriculture began additional spraying operations in Prince Georges County, Sept. 11, to control and prevent the spread of encephalitis. The additional spraying in the county will involve four spray units and cover a four-square-mile area around Bladensburg, Hyattsville and Riverdale.

Stop For School Buses

School bus accidents kill over 200 people annually in the United States. In Maryland, approximately 170 students are injured each year in school bus-related accidents, according to a survey by the National Safety Council.

Joseph Ruprecht, Director of Safety for Prince Georges County Public Schools, says, "Drivers should remember to watch out for the buses discharging or loading students now that school is in session."

The Maryland Driver's Handbook says that upon meeting a school bus coming in either direction that has stopped or is stopping, the motorist should come to a full stop of ten feet in front of or behind the bus. He shall not proceed until the bus has begun moving again. The only exception to this is when approaching a bus from the front on a dual (divided) highway.

The penalty for passing a school bus while it is loading or discharging students has been increased from one to two points on a motorist's driving record.

GHI Board Discusses Resales on New Homes

by Sid Kastner

In a relatively brief meeting on Sept. 11 - one and a half hours - the GHI board received a report on the operating statements for the six-month period from January through June of this year, and discussed proposed changes in the resale policy for the corporation's larger homes. In both matters information was provided by Donald McGinn, sitting in for manager Roy Breashears, who was unable to attend because of illness.

At present, GHI has a sixty-day option to repurchase any of the larger homes (twenty-eight in number, including the townhouses) that are being sold by their owners. In such a case an appraisal of the house has to be first arranged, taking two or three weeks to consider its purchase; this leaves only three or four weeks for the corporation to find a purchaser on the open market, McGinn explained. Thus the staff recommended extending the 60 day option to 90 days. This change was supported by chairman Jim Smith, who termed it "insurance against vacancy loss," and the board endorsed it on a formal motion.

The staff suggested also that a change be made in the policy of offering a two-week purchase period to members. The idea of removing this privilege for members encountered more resistance from the board members. Director Mary Clarke proposed instead that interested members be given notice of the prospective sale before the formal appraisal is carried out, which would have the effect of shortening the total waiting period. This modification of the policy was passed by the board on a separate motion.

Financial Position

In a comparison of actual operating expenses for the first six months of 1975 with the staff's prediction, the staff report noted that disbursements exceeded income by $49,200, which was a smaller amount than the $67,650 which had been forecast. McGinn ascribed this relatively favorable figure mainly to greater heating efficiency achieved in the brick homes. He expressed the further opinion that "if the oil price doesn't go up over 37 cents per gallon, we'll be in the best fuel consumption position that we've been in, for years."

A fuller description of the highlights of this six-month operating picture will be given in a later issue.

At the end of the short meeting, two members living at 2 Court of Research Road asked the board to give consideration to their separate requests for additions, which they felt had been made before the recent board-ordered moratorium on additions was decided on. One of the members said that this particular row of houses on Research Road has already been electrically "heavied up" (wired for more current) so that the reason for the moratorium did not apply to their case. Chairman Smith explained that he would have to get fuller information on this from the absent manager; the rest of the board showed their support for a quick decision on these members' requests by voting to give Smith and the manager authority to decide the matter.

Community Church Installs Co-Pastors

On Sunday, Sept. 21 a service of installation will be held at Greenbelt Community Church for the Rev. Harry Taylor and the Rev. Sherry Taylor. An ecclesiastical council will be convened at 4:30 p.m. with participants representing the UCC churches of the area. At 6 p.m. the church will host a supper for the delegates, to be followed at 7 p.m. by a service of worship. Ms. Sharon Ringe, a Ph.D. candidate from Union Theological Seminary in New York City, will give the meditation. Several members of the congregation will participate in the service along with the Rev. Harry Applewhite, associate conference minister; and the Rev. David Pederson, a friend of the Taylors, from Maryland Presbyterian Church.

The Community Church choir, under the direction of Mrs. Milly Kern, will give special music, including "Day by Day" from the musical "Godspell," and guitar music. A special offering will be received to be used in the United Church of Christ's program for hunger relief.

At the Library

The centennial celebration of D. W. Griffith's films continues at the Greenbelt Library on Tues., September 23 at 7 p.m. with his most famous film "Birth of a Nation." This film, starring Lillian Gish, Mae Marsh, and Henry B. Walthall, is an epic story of the Civil War and the Reconstruction, and how they influenced the lives of two families. The film is infamous for its blatant racism, and its glorification of the Ku Klux Klan, something which the embarrassed Griffith tried to atone for in his next film Intolerance.

Where were you? when your last Social Security check was delivered?

If you were away visiting your grandchildren or off on a trip, did you wonder a little about that check? Was it put in your mailbox? Did your neighbor take the mail in right away? Did you remember to deposit it as soon as you got home?

Twin Pines has a convenient, easy solution! Now, instead of getting your Social Security checks by mail at home, a new federal law allows you to have them sent and deposited directly to your savings account - At Twin Pines.

Your check will earn interest from the day of deposit, and you'll enjoy the extra benefits those Social Security dollars create for you at Twin Pines.

Social Security Direct Deposit is even easy to arrange. Just drop in at any Twin Pines office and fill out one short simple form. We'll make all the arrangements for you with Social Security - free, of course! Just remember: please bring your next Social Security check in with you - it will be the last one you'll have to deposit in person.
